Unit 5
Mngt of change

Date
Page

Concept of change –

The term change refers to any alternative which occurs in the overall work environment of an orgⁿ. It implies alteration of structural relationship and role of people in an orgⁿ.

Nature of Change –

1. Change results from the pressure of both internal & external forces in the orgⁿ. It distributes the existing status quality in the orgⁿ.

2. Changes may effect people, structure technology and other element of the orgⁿ.

3. The change in any part of the orgⁿ effect the whole of the orgⁿ.

4. Changes may be reactive or proactive when change is brought a lot due to the pressure of external forces, it is called re-active change. Pro-active change is initiated by the mgmt its own to increase orgⁿal effectiveness.

Date
Page

Definition — "Mgmt of change is a consious attemt to modify or change in which operation or functions with a view to respond to change to ensure survival of orgⁿ.

OR

Mgmt of change is the plan attemt by mgt to improve the overall performance of individuals, group and orgⁿ by altering structure behaviour and technology.

Mgmt of change — Mgt of orgⁿal change is a complex process change in orgⁿ does not occur on continuous basis. It requires proper planning and efforts on process of managing change are —

1- Identifying need for change.
2- Define the element to be change.
3- Planning the change.
4- Assesing change forces.
5- Implementing the change.
6- Follow up and feed back.

www.dreamstudy.tk

Date
Page

Forces of change –

External forces –

(a) Technology – The technology changes are responsible for changing the nature of jobs performate all levels in the orgⁿ.

(b) Market Condition – These are no more static. They are in the process of rapid change as the needs, desires and expectations of the customer change frequently.

(c) Social changes – Because of spread of education, knowledge, explosion and govt's efforts social changes are taking place at a fast speed.

(d) Political forces – Political forces within and outside the country have an important influence on large business houses, particularly the multinational corporation.

Internal forces –

Date
Page

(a) Changes in managerial personnel – Old manager are replaced by new managers which is necessary because of retirement, promotion, transfer etc.

(b) Changes in operative personnel – The new generation of workers have better education qualifications, place greater emphasis on human values and question authority of managers.

(c) Need for changes in existing structure – Changes may be needed to make up difficiences in the present orgⁿal setup.

Need for change –
The mgt should carefully analyse the external and internal forces demanding change in the orgⁿ. The information regarding change comes from the external env. & internal control system. After this, it is essential to lay down the objectives of change. This will help in determining statements of objectives of change will also facilitate in planning strategies of change.

Date
Page

New trends in orgⁿal change—

1- Effective comm— Two way comm. will go a long way towards removing fears and apprehensions of the workers and drinking understanding between the mgmt the workers.

2- Consulation with union leaders— Mgt. is regarded as the instigation of changes and unions are regarded as the fare stallers of change. The leaders can convey the workers about the logic of change and benefits the worker would desire out of it.

3- Education and training— In order to successful implement the change, sub-ordinates must introduced in new relationships taught new skills and helped to change attitudes. The educational process can be aided by training classes, meeting & conferences.

4- Facilitation and support— Facilitative

15/11/2017 . 6.

support means removing physical barriers in implementing change by providing appropriate Training, tools, materials etc. Emotional support is provided by showing personal concern for the sub-ordinates during periods of stress and strains.

5- Negotiation – It is related with offering the incentives for removing the resistance.

6- Manipulation – It involve consious structuring of events and the very selective use of information. It implies giving people a desirable role in the design and implementation of change.

7- Group dynamics – A group can be effective ~~and~~ in changing the attitudes and behaviour of its members particularly when it is attractive to the members and they have a strong sense of belonging to the group.

Date
Page

Models of change
Or
Process of planned change

1- Unfreezing - Unfreezing calls for loosening of emotional link with the old work methods and practices. It leads to unlearning of old thinking to learn new ones.
It involves the following steps:

a) Recognizing the driving forces - In order to recognize the pressure to change manager's need to develop sentivity towards the external and internal environment

b) Increasing the driving forces - Once the need for change is identified it needs to be communicated to the people concerned.

c) Managing the resisting forces - People resist change because they perceive it to be harmful to them it is therefore essential that they are made aware of its benefits.

2. Changing or moving - The moving phase consist of the following elements -

a) Force occurs when individuals are forced to change their by rewards or by punishment.

b) Internationatisation takes place when individual are forced to encounter a situation that call for new behaviour.

c) Identification occurs when individuals recognise one among various models in the environment that is most suitable to their personality.

3. Refreezing - During this phase, change is made a permanent part of orgⁿ's, life, numbers of the orgⁿ interalise the new beliefs, attitudes & behaviour learn during the changing phase. The manager as the change agent has to see that the new behaviour is effectively work with other behaviourial patterns. Without internationalisation individuals may revert back to the old system after sometime.

* Stress Management — Stress mgt is the alternation of stress and especially chronic stress often for the purpose of improving everyday functioning stress produces numerous symptoms which very according to persons, situations. These can include physical health decline as well as depression.

Although life provide numerous demands that can prove difficult to handle stress mgt is the best way to manage & maintain overall well being.

In order to develop an effective mgt. programme it is first necessary to identify the factors that are central to a person controlling his/her stress and to identify the intervention methods which effectively target these factors.

Date
Page

Techniques of stress management-
High demand levels loud the person with extra efford and work. A new time schedule is worked up, and untill the period of abnormally high personal demand has passed, the normal frequency and duration of former, schedules is limited.

(i) Coginitive Therapy
(ii) Exercise
(iii) Meditation
(iv) Deep breathing
(v) Yoga Nidra
(vi) Prayer
(vii) Spending time in nature
(viii) Natural medicine
(ix) Listening to certain types of relaxing music / may be the
- new age music
- classical music
- sleep music
(x) Spending quality time with pets.